Dr. Gordon is the first scholar/educator to publish a relevant, up-to-date synthesis of the history, philosophy, legislation, and organizational/curricular structure of career and technical education.

The fourth edition features comprehensive background and research on such topics as evolving employer expectations, special-needs populations, land-grant institutions, teacher shortages and alternative certification, CTSOs, and an historical overview of influential leaders and their impact on CTE curriculum development. Pre-service teachers as well as experienced CTE teachers will appreciate this well-documented road map of CTE.

Detailed discussions of current research and statistics on the latest CTE issues and trends include:

The participation of women and minorities, particularly in nontraditional programs such as STEM (science, technology, engineering and mathematics), and gender-equity issues both in education and in the workplace

The implications of an aging workforce for CTE career opportunities, and an analysis of today's multi-generational workforce

The impact of globalization, including workforce diversity, an increasing number of limited English-proficient students, and the promising fields of alternative energy and "green" technology

The future of CTE programs and funding in a precarious economic climate

A new chapter on 21st-century agents of growth, emphasizing college and career readiness and the effectiveness of programs of study/career clusters
